Dear Ashley County Genealogical Society Friends:

As I write this I have just returned from a monthly steering committee meeting of the Crossett Centennial Coalition. In the Crossett News Observer this week was an article covering the sesquicentennial celebration for Hamburg. This is a banner time for observing major anniversaries in our county. We are called the Ashley County Genealogical Society, but you cannot study genealogy without studying history as well. Members of our society have been, and will continue to be, involved with the observance of these historical events. In future issues of the newsletter and Kin Kollecing you can look for special centennial information and articles.

Some of our out of state members may not be aware of Crossett's unique history, beginning as a company town carved out of the woods in southeast Arkansas. When my wife and I moved to Crossett as newlyweds in 1956 we were told that finding a place to rent was very difficult, because barely 10 years before the Crossett Company offered the houses for sale and that everyone bought their house. We were told in 1956 that 95% of the houses in town were owned by the people who lived in them. We were fortunate to find someone moving out of a furnished apartment at 505-B Main Street just when we needed it in early June.

In 1956 the major industries in town were the paper mill with three paper machines (two making kraft paper and one making bleached foodboard), the lumber mill which made dimensioned lumber, molding and pine sheathing and panelling as well as hardwood panelling and flooring. The Crossett Chemical Company made charcoal and charcoal briquettes. By-products from that process included methanol and acetic acid. The Chemical Company also produced tall oil using spent soap from the paper pulping process. By-products from the Lumber Company included pine chips for the Paper Mill and hardwood blocks as raw material for the Chemical Company. The remainder of the wood input to the various plants was furnished by the Forestry Division which managed and logged the forest. At that time the Crossett Company still owned the Public Utilities Company; which furnished electricity, water, gas and telephone service to Crossett residents. They also owned The Bank Of Crossett, AD&N Railroad, and The Rose Inn. The Town Division sold lots for new residential construction. They cost $10 per front foot (a 90-foot lot cost $900 and a 120-foot lot was $1,200). These were complete with curbs and gutters, paved streets, an access alley behind the lots which already contained all utilities; water, gas, sewer, telephone and power. Once a family spoke for a lot, they had a limited time to begin construction. This rule was instituted to prevent developers from buying up blocks of property for speculative purposes. These kinds of memories and others from even earlier times will be flowing all over during the next several months. To those of you who haven't known about Crossett but would like to, and to those who have known and would like to refresh your memories; put June 12, 1999 on your calendar as Founders' day. People from all over will be coming to help us celebrate our 100th birthday.

We'll be looking for you too,

Claude Spainhour

THE BATTLE OF MARKS MILL

During the Civil War, Arkansas was considered a secondary theater of action. However, more than 750 military engagements were recorded in Arkansas. Strategically located on the Mississippi River, it was a gateway to the Great Southwest, which the North wanted to occupy in order that its cotton would alleviate the shortage of cotton which caused many textile mills to close. So, in December of 1862 the Federal government launched the Red River Campaign. The forces of Major General Nathaniel P. BANKS sailed from New York but was delayed by General U. S. GRANT to participate in the Battle of Vicksburg and Port Hudson. After these campaigns, he proceeded to his original destination. He and Rear Admiral David PORTER were to navigate the Red River to Shreveport, Louisiana and a second force was to move south from Little Rock to join Banks for the invasion of Texas. (Due to tactical errors, low water in the Red River, and the forces of Confederate General Richard TAYLOR under General E. Kirby SMITH, BANKS was forced to abandon the invasion plans.) Major General Frederick STEELE led his well equipped forces out of Little Rock on March 23, 1864 to complete the conquest of Arkansas, Louisiana, and Texas. He had a force of 13,00 men, 30 cannons, 800 wagons, and 12,00 mules and horses. Moving south through Benton, STEELE crossed the Saline River with little resistance and headed south to Shreveport, Louisiana. Passing near Camden, Arkansas, a Confederate held town, he could not pass such a prize. The town of Camden was taken with little resistance.

Although his troops were in the well fortified town, he was concerned about his situation. The journey from Little Rock had cost more than he had estimated. Food was running low for horses and men. Earlier STEELE had sent dispatches to his superiors suggesting that supplies for his army be supplied by boat on the Ouachita River. This was not done and he was left with the choice of foraging the countryside or a wagon train to Pine Bluff. The 1st Kansas Colored Infantry and a section of artillery escorted a forage train in search of corn. General E. Kirby SMITH had moved into the perimeter of Camden and his ambush of the wagon train at Poison Springs on April 18, 1864, left STEELE in desperate need of supplies. Just when it seemed things were at their worst, on the April 20th he received a wagon train load of supplies from Pine Bluff with a five day supply of rations for his army. The train was unloaded and returned to Pine Bluff for more supplies.

The commanding general for the Trans-Mississippi Department, Lieutenant-General E. Kirby SMITH, reached Woodlawn on April 17th. When he arrived, he ordered General Sterling PRICE, commanding General for the Arkansas cavalry, to place his cavalry force on the east of the Ouachita River to interrupt the Union supply line from Camden to Pine Bluff. PRICE organized a large cavalry force commanded by Brigadier-General James FAGAN. FAGAN'S Arkansas Cavalry moved out of Woodlawn on April 22 and was joined by General Joe SHELBY'S Missouri cavalry stationed at El Dorado Landing, twenty-six miles below Camden. On April 22, SHELBY'S scouts learned of the large wagon train leaving Camden. FAGAN, upon learning of this train, began making preparation to destroy it.

On the morning of the 23rd the Union wagon train left Camden enroute to Pine Bluff. Commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Francis DRAKE of the 36th Iowa Infantry. The train, over 200 government wagons along with 100 others belonging to sutlers, refugees, and cotton speculators escaping to Federal territory, was escorted by 1,200 infantry, 240 cavalry, and 6 pieces of artillery. The train reached the western edge of Moro Bottom without much difficulty and camped there on the night of April 24.

FAGAN with a force of 4,000 horseman and eight pieces of artillery crossed the Ouachita River and moved rapidly to intercept the wagon train which was one days march ahead of them. He was eight miles from Marks' Mill at midnight on April 24th, when he halted for a much needed rest after coming 45 hard miles. Upon learning, just before daylight, that the wagon train was camped on Moro creek, he made plans to attack it at Marks' Mill. It was this place that several roads intersect: roads leading to Princeton, to Pine Bluff, to Mount Elba, to Moro, to Longview, and to Warren. While some distance from the junction FAGAN'S escort was fired upon by a Federal patrol on the Warren road. He then ordered General SHELBY toward the east. William D. MARKS guided this command through the area very familiar to him and came to the Mount Elba road five miles east of Marks' Mill.

The men, many of whom lived near the road the Federals were traveling, were determined to capture this supply train. The Federal soldiers, known to be desperate for food, were known to be robbing every house and barn they passed, taking not only food but jewelry, silverware, fine clothes and bedding. In other words, every article of value, including mules and horses.

On the morning of April 25th, DRAKE started the train on the road to Marks' Mill at dawn. The 43rd Indiana was earlier ordered forward to the junction of the Warren and Mount Elba and when reaching the junction DRAKE received word from his scouts that the enemy had been sighted. The 43rd Indiana formed a battle line covering the junction facing south, and orders were sent to the rear to bring up the other two regiments.

While SHELBY'S troops were getting into position, General William CABELL was order to form a line of battle parallel to the Mount Elba road. He placed one regiment and two battalions on the right of the Warren road and one regiment on the left and the four gun battery of artillery was placed with a regiment for support. At CABELL'S signal, the whole command swept toward the train, easily taking Major SPELLING'S Union Cavalry and reached the mill an captured and killed a number of men and captured a number of wagons. Colonel MORGAN on the west flank met with little resistance reaching the train. They found the train in a clearing and killed or captured a number of Union cavalry and teamsters. To block the road and stall the train, his men killed mules pulling the wagons. The center regiment came into contact with the 43rd Indiana covering the road junction. The 43rd counter-attacked and DRAKE ordered the left battalion of the 36th Iowa to support the 43rd attack. Meanwhile, realizing the center regiment had not advanced and could hear heavy firing in the rear, the Confederates on the left and right were now converging on the 43rd. As they were re-aligned with the 1st Arkansas the three regiments drove forward, striking with such force that the 43rd was forced to fall back. The Union forces now formed a battle line covering the junction and to the left and right of a large log house. Above the house, Lieutenant PEETS commanding Battery E, 2nd Missouri Light Artillery had parked two James rifled cannon on the Camden road earlier and Federal troops were posted in the open woods along the Red Land Ridge with a section of artillery in position.

By 9 a.m., the Confederate troops spotted the Union battle line, and slowly made their way toward the hill. When they were within 75 yards PEETS two James rifles fired on the advancing Confederates. The 36th Iowa began to fire volly after volly of mini balls at the same time. The Confederate flag went down and was raised again. The line staggered, fell back only to surge forward again. The savage battle lasted for the next one and one-half hours. CABELL sent for his artillery to knock out the guns of Battery E. Captain HUGHEY'S men brought their four guns to within four hundred yards of the Federal line sending rounds of canister shot into the line. The Confederates could see that their artillery was dead. The Federal line was weaving and showing signs of giving away. About this time, General DOCKERY'S command arrived and joined the action on CABELL'S left, swept around CABELL'S men and reached a position on the Camden road to the west of the Union troops. As SHELBY approached from the east, the Union forces were now surrounded on three sides.

About 10:30 a.m., DRAKE decided to make contact with Major Mark McCAULEY to bring the 77th Ohio to the front from the rear of the train. DRAKE was struck by a mini ball in the left hip and severely wounded but before he passed out he turned his command over to Major SPELLMAN.

When Captain Richard COLLINS fired his two cannon to let FAGAN know they were on the left flank and rear of the Federal troops, the Confederates charged into the 36th Iowa forcing them back into the fighting around the guns and buildings. Meanwhile, CABELL'S men attacked the two cannon on the Camden road.

The Union troops, after an hour of hand-to-hand combat, out of ammunition, began to retreat into the woods. The Confederates had captured two cannon and a number of wagons and a host of prisoners.

HARRELL'S battalion, in the woods north of the road attacked the 77th Ohio from the rear as they were marching toward the battle when they ran into DOCKERY's command who was blocking the road. The 77th surrendered after about an hour of fighting.

The Federals lost more than 1,300 men, most of whom were captured, 250 killed or wounded, after five bloody, costly hours of battle. The Confederates had engaged 2500 men: 41 killed; 108 wounded; 144 missing. The Union dead were buried on the MARKS plantation and the wounded carried to the home of John Harvie MARKS. The Confederate wounded was carried to the homes of Bill DAVIS, Watt SMITH, and Warren CRANE.

The Confederates captured six pieces of artillery, a cache of ammunition, four flags, a mail wagon, and 175,000 dollars in greenbacks and much plunder. The Federal wagons contained many prized family possessions, jewelry, bedding stolen from local citizens. They were carried to John MARKS' house where they were to be restored to their owners. Following the battle, the Confederates were treated to a sumptuous meal prepared of food taken from the captured wagons.

The Battle of Marks' Mill in present day Cleveland County was one of three major battles that helped stamie the Arkansas phase of the Red River Campaign and helped secure the southwestern part of Arkansas where the Confederate capital of Arkansas was located in Washington (Hemmpstead County) until the end of the war.

The following material was taken from Reminiscences of Long Ago by Mary A. E. Pickett, the eldest daughter of John Harvie MARKS and his wife Martha Jane THORNTON MARKS. She related the following story:

Times were growing serious. Colonel McMURTREY had arrived and said the Feds not only had Pine Bluff, but also Little Rock and Camden, too. He reported that our troops were somewhere in Louisiana and that he must leave the next morning. Uncle Evan went with him and we heard no more from then for many days, in fact, not until the night before the Battle of Marks' Mill which was fought on April 25, 1864. General STEELE, who was commanding the Federal troops, had decided to evacuate Camden. Sending part of his men up the road toward Little Rock he started the rest under General DRAKE to Pine Bluff.

Later in the afternoon of the 24th of April, one of our old slaves, who had been to preaching in the little village of Chambersville, came back in a hurry telling us excitedly that the Yankees were coming...we didn't sleep much that night.

The next morning Confederate General CABELL formed his men in line of battle up and down the Pine Bluff Road. General FAGAN'S line was from Pine Bluff Road out west, parallel with the Princeton Road up which the Federal Troops would come. General CABELL ordered General SHELBY to take his men around through the country, and come into the Pine Bluff Road near Mount Elba Crossing on the Saline River. They were to take my uncle, Lt. Evan P. MARKS, as guide. All this was done early in the morning and so quietly that the people knew nothing of what was going on until the battle began.

During the night, the Federal pickets, who had been stationed at Mount Elba, had been exchanged for other troops and sent on down the road to meet the command. Instead, they stopped at Grandmother MARKS' home. They plundered her house looking for money and other valuables, which they could take with them....Soon a rumbling sound was heard. When they looked outside, they saw General SHELBY men advancing rapidly. They wore blue coats like the Feds, so naturally, we thought they were Yankee soldiers. As the Confederate flag was raised, we began to clap our hands.

When the enemy troops heard the noise, they left in a hurry. Our troops stopped them but they would not surrender. One soldier was shot near the house and the other one down by the road. By that time, Uncle Evan had reached the gate but we didn't recognize him until he spoke. He told us to get into the house and close all the doors and windows because there would be a battle and we might be killed.

Grandmother, hardly realizing what she was saying, asked Uncle Evan to remain with them. He refused and laughingly told his mother that he wouldn't miss it for anything and assured her that they would win. Soon he told us goodbye and left. A few minutes later we heard gunshots. Cannons jarred the earth. The fighting was terrible but lasted only a short time.

The Federals found General CABELL in front of them and Generals FAGAN and SHELBY close behind them. They were completely surrounded; so they surrendered army, guns, cannon, wagons, mules, horses, and everything. Several hundred Feds were killed and wounded with only a few Confederate casualties and approximately one hundred wounded.

Uncle Evan had some of the wounded Yankee soldiers carried from the battlefield into his mother's house. She and I nursed them until they were paroled and sent to their homes. We never saw them again, but I still hear from them. They have never forgotten us and try to show in every way their gratitude for the care and protection we gave them.

Sketches Of Early Ashley County Families

J. R. HILL

In the state of Alabama there was born to James HILL and wife the subject of this sketch, whose birth took place in the year 1855. He was brought to this State by his parents in 1858, and after residing on Beech Creek for eight or nine years, he was brought to his present abode, and in this State was reared to manhood and educated his opportunities however, for becoming a good scholar being, rather limited. In the year 1878 he settled on the farm where he now lives, which consists of 140 acres, and he has thirty acres under cultivation, his average yield of cotton per acre being about one-half bale, and corn, twenty bushels, fruit of nearly all kinds being raised to abundance. Mr. HILL is an intelligent, well-informed and enterprising gentleman, and as he commenced life a poor boy with limited education, and is now in the possession of a comfortable competency, he deserves and has the confidence and respect of all. His worthy wife, before her marriage in 1877, was Miss Magie ADAMS, a daughter of Joseph ADAMS, of Louisiana, who died when she was a child, and to their union the following five children have been born: Willie, Lewis, Walter, Harry and Ollie. Mr. HILL supports the measures of the Democrat party, and in 1889 was elected constable of his township, a position he still holds. He is also school director, a member of the Farmers' and Laborers' Union of America, and he and Mrs. HILL belong to the Baptist Church.

R. C DEW

R. C. DEW is one of the sturdy, honest and independent farmers of Ashley County, Ark., and is now actively engaged in tilling his farm, which comprises 113 acres of land, the fifty acres which are under cultivation being devoted to the raising of cotton, corn, oats, etc., the yield of the former being one-half bale to the acre, and corn twenty bushels. He was born in Lee County, Miss., February 5, 1853, and when about seven years of age was brought to Arkansas by his father, and has here lived continuously ever since. He received a common-school education, and upon attaining his majority he began farming for himself, and after renting land for two years, he bought 170 acres of land, thirty-five of which were improved. After making this place his home for four years he sold out and bought his present property, which has become under his able management, one of the valuable farms of the county. Miss Maggie J. NUTT, a daughter of William NUTT, of Ashley County, Ark., became his wife, November 27, 1873, and in time a family of six children gathered about their hearthstone: Ida, Sallie, Lindsey, Ambrose, Jessie and Carroll. Mr. and Mrs. DEW are members of the Baptist Church, and in his political views he is a stanch Democrat. He is one of seven children born to the marriage of John C. and Mary (VARNAN) DEW. His parents were married in Mississippi, about 1842, in which State they made their home for some seventeen years prior to their removal to Arkansas. The father died in Ashley County, in 1871, an earnest member of the Baptist Church, but his widow still survives him.

Goodspeed History of Arkansas, p. 898

W. J. DEW

W. J. DEW is the owner of a fine farm of 300 acres of creek bottom land, and on this he raises on an average 1,000 pounds of cotton and fifteen bushels of corn to the acre, besides all varieties of fruit, with the exception of pears, blackberries, strawberries, etc., growing wild. His birth occurred in the State of Mississippi, in 1854, to John DEW, a native of South Carolina, who died in 1871, the grandfather, Reuben DEW, being of English descent. In 1861, W. J. DEW came to Arkansas, and here he attained manhood, but received a rather limited early education. In 1878 he began an independent career, farming on the land he now owns, which was given to his wife by her mother, their union having taken place the year before. Her maiden name was Miss Williams, a daughter of Benjamin WILLIAMS, a pioneer magistrate of Ashley County, who died about 1861 or 1862. To Mr. and Mrs. DEW a family of five children have been born: Howard E., Ernest, Harry, Jewell and Mary, all of whom are living. Mr. DEW has always been a Democrat, and on this ticket was elected to the position of constable of his township, in 1878, and filled the position very successfully for two years. He has always been much interested in farming, and is a member of the Agricultural Wheel, he and Mrs. DEW being worthy members of the Baptist Church.

Gaston P. GEORGE

Gaston P. GEORGE, merchant and farmer, Poplar Bluff, Ark. Mr. GEORGE is not only a successful agriculturist, but is a man of good business experience, progressive in his ideas, as well understands how to suit the desires and wishes of those buying of him. He owes his nativity to this State, his birth occuring in Union County April 7, 1847, and is a son of Hosea and Althena C. (POOLE) GEORGE, the father born in Virginia and the mother in Alabama. The parents moved to Arkansas in 1854, bought land in Union County, and there the father farmed very extensively, having 3,000 acres of land under cultivation at one time. In 1857 he moved to Ashley County, on Bartholomew Bayou, and there carried on his former occupation on just as an extensive scale. There he resided until his death in 1859. The mother died on June 1, 1878. They reared a family of three children, two now living, a daughter, now the wife of W. T. HARRIS. Gaston P. GEORGE had but little chances for an education as the country was thinly settled, and when but fourteen years of age, or in the latter part of 1861, he enlisted in Capt. CLARKS company, the Thirteenth Arkansas, Claibourne's brigade, and operated on the west side of the Mississippi River. He was the youngest member of the company, and he and his captain are the only members of that company now living. He was in the battles of Columbus (Ky.), Shiloh, and was on the Kentucky rais, but was discharged for being under age. He came back home, attended school about six months, and when CLARK was sent out to raise another company from Ashley and Chicot Counties, our subject joined this company and was in the cavalry. His command was disbanded and he was at home at the time of the surrender. After the war he went to Covington, Tenn., attended school for two years, and after returning home engaged in farming on the home place, This occupation he has continued ever since. He owns and controls about 1,000 acres of land in two places, 640 acres his own, and 250 acres under cultivation on the home place, and 125 acres in another. Mr. GEORGE was married in September, 1868, to Miss Josie A. GEORGE, daughter of Washington GEORGE, and they have six children - five sons and one daughter: G. Percy, B. F., Joseph, Norwood, Sue and Clarence (who died at the age of five years). Mr. and Mrs. GEORGE are members of the Methodist Church. Socially Mr. GEORGE is a member of the Masonic fraternity and K. of P. He is Democratic in his political views.

THE ADAIR FAMILY
 ADAIR ADARE (ODARE ODAIR)

Some think that ADAIR is but a different pronunciation of EDZEAR (z=y). As land holders in the Dumfries area of Scotland the ADAIRS (EDGARS), THOMAS EDZEAR OR ODEIR, had a charter of lands of Kildonan in the Rynes of Galloway from Robert I (Black) He also had a charter from ROBERT BRUCE of the lands of Dildonan.

In times of strife the ADAIRS and other landowners allied themselves with the LORDS MAXWELL of Caerlaverock Castle, the principle landowners in the area and hereditary Wardens of the West Marches. (Septs of the Maxwell Family by Stephen H. Maxwell--House of Maxwell, Sept. 1995)

WILLIAM ADARE

Married SARA ANN SCOTT two known children:

1. ROBERT married CHRISTINA B. no known children, died 1804

In 1784 WILLIAM was granted 250 acres in Wilkes Co., Ga for his service during the American Revolution. He served under COLONEL ELIJAH CLARK in the Battalion of Minute Men. In 1796 he was granted another 111 acres. In 1799 he began to sell off his land including the plantation where he lived. He died in 1804 in Jackson Co., Ga. (Military Certificates of Ga 1776-1880 by Marion R. Hemperley ; Wilkes County, Ga Deeds Book SS; Wilkes Co. Tax Digest; Wilkes Co. Ga. Index To 1900 Census

Ashley County Arkansas

In 1988-89 Ashley County Genealogical Society members abstracted this index as a guide in finding families and individuals residing in Ashley County, Arkansas, when the 1900 census was enumerated. The index is listed in the order it appears on census microfilm by family number and by township. As always, we recommend that researchers use the index for assistance only, and that the original entire entry should be read. There is much other information about all persons in the household, including month and year of birth and relationship to head of the house. The abstractors attempted to be as accurate as possible with name spellings, etc., but handwriting is difficult to decipher, and sometimes only a "best guesstimate" is the result. The entire census was reread after the original abstractions. Those who deserve thanks for this are: Morene HISAW, Ella Mae WHITE, Lois HAGOOD, Faith NOWLIN, and Marilyn HUDGENS. Thanks also for the help and cooperation of the staff at Paul Sullins Library in Crossett
